Subject: RE: [EXTERNAL] FW: Activity in Case 4:18-cv-06753-PJH In re Ripple Labs Inc. Litigation Bill of Costs

Hi Brad,

We disagree with your analysis of the timing issue and plan to ask the Court to defer any ruling on costs until there has been a final judgment as to all parties and all causes of action. The Shorter case you rely on is entirely inapposite as it involves a situation where all claims against one defendant had been adjudicated. Obviously, that is not the case here.

Just to be entirely clear, we also plan to ask the Court to deny Ripple's request for fees entirely based on : "(1) the substantial public importance of the case, (2) the closeness and difficulty of the issues in the case, (3) the chilling effect on future similar actions, (4) the plaintiff's limited financial resources, and (5) the economic disparity between the parties." Escriba v. Foster Poultry Farms, Inc., 743 F.3d 1236, 1247–48 (9th Cir. 2014).

With respect to deposition costs, I would add that Ripple is also seeking expediting costs with respect to Exs. 44, 50, 51, 52, 56, 58, 60, 62, 64, and 65. Costs associated with expedited transcripts are generally not recoverable. Is Ripple able to identify the portion of these costs (if any) that is not associated with expediting the transcripts? If not, we will ask the court to strike those costs in their entirety.

Finally, your email confirms that the Data Processing costs which Ripple seeks reimbursement for were not incurred in making copies and are thus not taxable. We plan to object to these costs on this basis, as well as on the grounds that it is not clear any of Ripple's purported "document reproduction costs" were actually incurred in this case.

Best regards

James

James,

This is to respond to the points raised in your email below.

On timing of the costs application, we don't think the cases you sent, which ultimately stem from the Tenth Circuit's Woodmen decision, apply here, for two main reasons. First, in this case there has been a final determination that Defendants are the prevailing parties with regard to claims brought by the certified class; even if plaintiff prevails on his individual claim, that would not make the class the prevailing party on its claims. See Shorter v. S. California Buick Pontiac GMC Dealers Inc., 2018 WL 5903812, at *4 (C.D. Cal. June 7, 2018) ("Woodmen is distinguishable from this case because the Dismissal Order resolved all claims properly before the Court between Plaintiff and [a specific defendant]," even though claims between other parties remained live). Second, Woodmen turned in large part on the absence of a rule stating "a time in which the motion for costs must be made." 784 F.2d at 1058. By contrast, the local rules here require that a bill of costs must be filed within 14 days of the entry of judgment, see L.R. 54-1(a). That said, if you have any authority from this district or the Ninth Circuit suggesting that this 14-day limit does not apply to judgments entered under Rule 54(b) in particular, we are willing to consider it.

On deposition costs, I noted on our call that the local rules expressly allow for the cost of videotaped depositions. See L.R. 54-3(c)(1) (allowing costs of depositions, "including videotaped depositions"); see also, e.g., Granite Rock Co. v. Teamsters Local 287 Int'l B'hd, 2008 WL 2697167, at *1 (July 7, 2008) ("[T]he explicit inclusion of videotaped depositions in Rule 54-3(c)(1) means that the cost is recoverable. The rule does not limit the recovery to either a written transcript or a videotape."). I said that we would consider any contrary authority you might have, but you have not provided any. Similarly, as to the request to limit deposition costs to transcripts cited at summary judgment, I noted during our call that the local rules are not so limited. See L.R. 54-3(c)(1) (cost of "any deposition . . . taken for any purpose in connection with the case is allowable") (emphasis added). You again have not provided any contrary authority.

On the document reproduction costs, your email below misstates our conversation. I said during our call that it was unclear what you meant when asking whether the costs related "solely" to productions; you did not attempt to clarify. In any event, as your email notes, I went on to explain that the costs were incurred for the purpose of preparing outbound productions. It's unclear from our call and your email below whether you intend to make an objection in this regard, but we would note that the scope of permissible production expenses in this district is significantly broader than the narrow categories Ripple included in its bill of costs. See, e.g., Parrish v. Manatt, Phelps & Phillips, LLP, 2011 WL 1362112, at *2 (N.D. Cal. Apr. 11, 2011) (costs of "collecting, reviewing, and preparing client documents for production" "are properly taxable").

Finally, as to the size of Ripple's outbound production, we have not yet been able to obtain the figure you requested. We note, though, that it should be expected that "more data than was actually produced" got submitted for processing. As Ms. Guardado's declaration explained, the data processing charge includes tasks such as "de-NIST and deduplication," both of which serve to reduce the volume of data that is ultimately produced.

Regards,
Brad

Subject: RE: [EXTERNAL] FW: Activity in Case 4:18-cv-06753-PJH In re Ripple Labs Inc. Litigation Bill of Costs

Hi Brad,

Thanks for taking the time to speak with me. As discussed, we believe that it is inappropriate for Ripple to seek costs at this juncture since the Parties' Joint Motion and the Court's Order did not include a direction to tax costs and it is not yet clear who will be the prevailing party in this litigation. We therefore asked if Ripple would agree to defer adjudication of costs until there has been a final judgment as to all parties and all causes of action. I'm attaching a number of cases, including one from within the Ninth Circuit, that have identified this as the correct approach.

With respect to the costs themselves, I asked whether Ripple is able to break out the cost for transcription versus the cost for video deposition. As discussed, we don't believe that the costs of video are compensable here. I also asked whether Ripple would be willing to withdraw its request with respect to depositions that were not cited in the summary judgment briefing.

With respect to the document reproduction costs, I inquired whether Data Processing, OCR, Selective Image Creation, and Automated and Native Redaction services relate solely to productions. You stated that you were hesitant to say that they related solely to productions, because, for example, you would also have received copies of TIFF files generated through Selective Image Creation, but that your understanding was that these charges all relate to getting productions out the door.

I also asked whether Ripple can provide the number of GB of data it produced to Plaintiff in this matter. As discussed, based on our review of Ripple's productions, it appears that Ripple is seeking reimbursement related to the processing of significantly more data than was actually produced. You stated that you did not have this information on hand, but that you would see if you can obtain it from your client.

You agreed that you would try to get back to me on the above by this Friday.

Best regards

James

Counsel,
We have a number of objections to the bill of costs filed by Ripple. Can you please let us know your availability for a meet and confer call to discuss? I'm generally available today and tomorrow.

Best regards

James
